Forest Preserve District of Will County

Isle a la Cache

This island (“isle” in French) in the Des Plaines River in Romeoville may have been used by voyageurs in the 1700s to cache their supplies and goods. In the early 1900s, the island was used for summer homes, private recreation, and sportsmen’s clubs. Between 1982 and 1997, the District secured 100 acres through purchases, land donations, and conservation easements, including the island and nearby shorelines of the river.

Located on the island on the south side of E. Romeo Road (135th Street) is the Isle a la Cache Museum. The museum and outdoor educational elements of the Isle interpret the late 18th-century fur trade between Native Americans and French voyageurs. The island has a canoe landing for river access and a connection to the Centennial and I&M Canal Trails, which are located east of the Isle. Prairie and wetland communities were re-created in 1993. The museum also underwent major renovations in 1993 and 2007. Due to the fact that Isle a la Cache preserve is an island, portions of the Preserve including its trails and walkways may become flooded.
